Well-being from Nature

Are you feeling lazy? Go out into nature. Are you feeling down? Go out into nature. Do you suffer from stress? Go out into nature. Are you looking for new social relationships? Go out into nature.

A growing number of researchers believe that nature-based activity and spending time in nature has many benefits in terms of health and well-being.

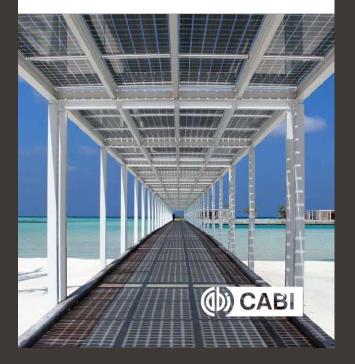

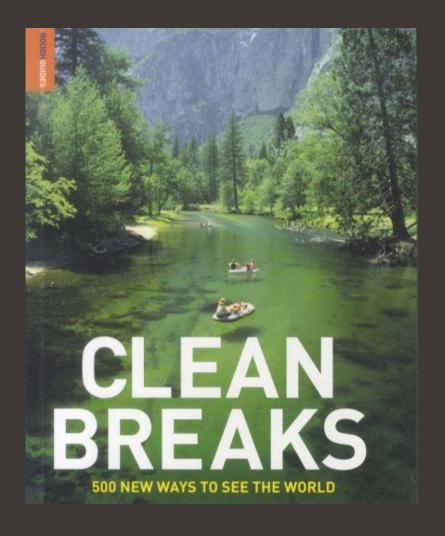

Transforming Travel

Realising the potential of sustainable tourism

Jeremy Smith

Tourism has huge impacts on climate change, and is hugely affected by it too. The industry should Declare a #ClimateEmergency and transform its current extractive model into one that supports resilient communities and regenerates biodiversity. RT if you agree. Follow for more.

Tourism Declares a Climate Emergency

We're a collective of 114 travel organisations, companies and professionals who have declared a climate emergency and are coming together to find solutions.

We acknowledge the science stating we have to act now to address this crisis over the next decade.

We accept our responsibility to tell the truth, work together, and help build a new, regenerative tourism industry.

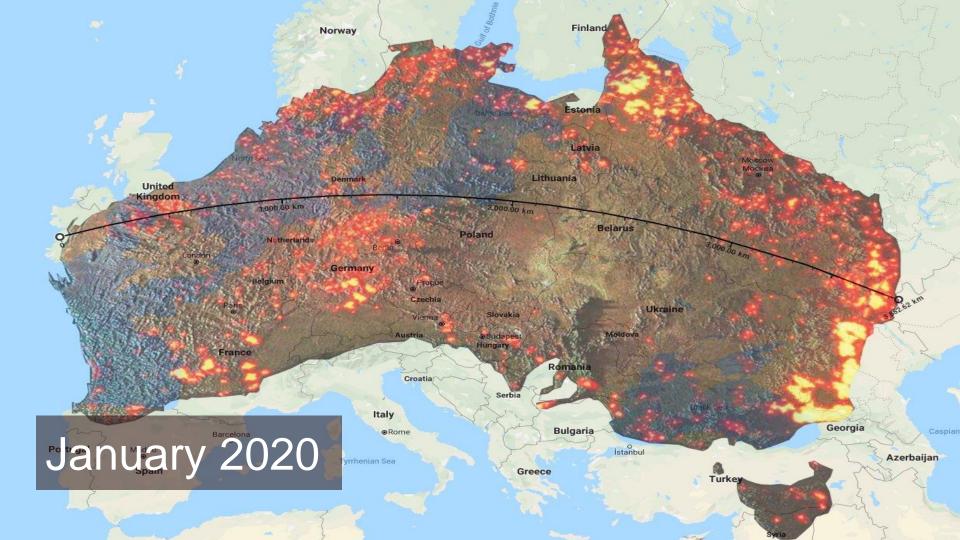

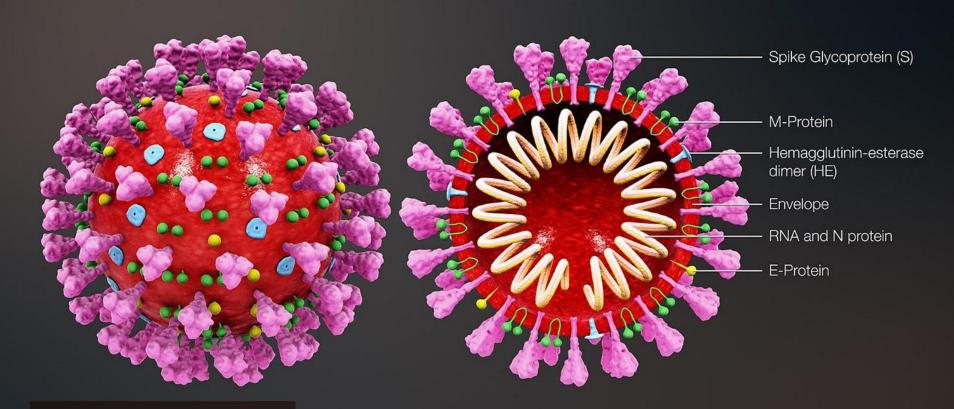

Tourism Declares 5 Commitments

- Declare a Climate Emergency
- Publish a Climate Action Plan
- Base your Plan on Science
